

Hi!

The Scrum Alliance require that all students do a 2 day course before they can sit certification as (CSM). This course will help you get grounding for any certification based on the scrum guide, however the Scrum Alliance have decided that a face to face test is necessary for their qualification. Therefore unfortunately you are NOT eligible to sit the CSM after taking this course.

You can find a course here. They cost usually around $1200

<https://www.scrumalliance.org/courses-events/course>

Now, to get an official qualification from the founders of scrum and still save money, I recommend doing my Agile Scrum Training and Certification Prep course then going to the scrum.org site and sitting PSM I. for around $150 at the time of this post.

<https://www.scrum.org/Assessments/Professional-Scrum-Master-Assessments>

You can do this directly.

Take care.

Paul.