

How do teams write subtasks

My brief answer is that in scrum, we usually (but don't have to) create sub-tasks for user stories. These are technical tasks of the form "create database columns" or "write login script". However the nature of the task depends on the developer's approach, the technology and the language that the team feel most comfortable in.